I don't see what linearity has to do with it. I mean, for \bar{x} and x , where x is an arbitrary vector, what can we say about $\langle \bar{x}, x \rangle$? Can I swap them? I guess I'm just not really seeing it. A: You can use the inner product as an expression, just like you can use the vector product. $\langle \bar{x}, x \rangle = \bar{x} \cdot x = x^T \bar{x} = \langle \bar{x}, x \rangle$
